"In a day or two," she said, "we intend to start in with the newsstands in the strongly German region that extends along Third Avenue from Fourteenth to Eighty-sixth Street, and with those on the East Side. These are the places that minister to the hotbeds of terman symmathy. The only way to praces that minister to the notices of terman sympathy. The only way to break them up is to throw a ceaseless spotlight on their activities."

Other German papers show no signs of following in Hearst's footsteps. On the contrary, they are firm in their declarations that they will continue publication.

"The German papers fulfil an important and necessary function in American life." said Bernard Ridder, editor of the "Staats-Zeitung." "I do not think Mrs. Field quite realizes the situation. There are thousands of persons in this country who do not speak English. Many of the older German immigrants to this country come into this class. The only way to teach these people American principles and ideals is through the German language papers. That is what we are doing."

"I love my country as every citizen should, and I desire to be of whatever service I can for its highest and truest welfare. Tonight the vestry will consider the case and probably will ask for his resignation, which Mr. Urban indicated he was willing and ready to give.

In his explanation the minister referred to the act whereby the flag was taken into the church and hung without his knowledge as "lawlessness."

That there is no sort of political intent in her determination to win an expression from the Mayor in this matter Mrs. Field was emphatic in declaring. "It is simply a straight out-and-out issue of pure Americanism," she said. "Personaity, my political connections have always been on the Democratic side."

Mrs. Field holds that advertisers who give business to German papers simply encourage un-Americanism, and it is on this ground that she will make her first plea to them to-day.

While Mrs. Field is thus engaged, squads of distributers are to-day going out through the city with placards bearing the legend: "This is a patriotic newsstand. We do not sell newspapers or magazines printed in German or other enemy alien tongues."

In the offices of several of the barge companies it was admitted that in some extent the complaints of the men were justified, but no remedy for the conditions were suggested. "I had heard it said that the men were dissatisfied with their $70 award," said Frederick T. Kellers, of the McWilliams Blue Line, "but don't see how anything can be done for them at present. The scale is as high as the returns from our business could possibly warrant. The men have the cabins of their boats rent free, and the money they receive enables them to provide properly for their families as long as they all stay affoat, It is unfortunate, of course, that the children are kept out of school.
